Suffolk Market Events deliver award winning farmers' markets across Suffolk and we are delighted to once again be a part of The Harvest Festival working in collaboration with St Edmundsbury Cathedral.

On Sunday 9th October you will find our fabulous farmers' market filling Angel Hill in the centre of Bury St Edmunds with our bright coloured gazebos and, of course, giant tractors!

Our farmers' market gives everyone the chance to enjoy some of the region's very best, locally produced food and to celebrate the town's origins and heritage so deeply rooted in agriculture, and it's all organised personally, by Justine Paul, founder of Suffolk Market Events and title holder of Suffolk's Food & Drink Hero.

Here at Suffolk Market Events we really do care about the provenance of our food. Everything that is sold in our markets has been produced by the person who is selling and nothing will have travelled further than fifty miles to be at the event. We don't do mass produced junk food. We showcase the highest quality, locally sourced food.

This year stalls will include locally made jams and chutneys, homemade sauces using genuine family recipes, slabs of freshly baked cakes and bread, locally smoked cheeses, meats and olives, amazing steak sandwiches using Suffolk Red Poll and a small selection of top quality, handmade non-food stalls.

For further information about all these events, and all our farmers' markets please contact Justine Paul
